DR. BRIDGET KONTER (University of Texas, El Paso) will present: “Locked, Loaded, and Looming?”

12:30-1:30pm, Thursday OCTOBER 27th
ELAC PERFORMING ARTS CENTER S2 RECITAL HALL

When will the next big EARTHQUAKE strike on the SAN ANDREAS FAULT?

Learn about the state of stress on the SAF and likelihood of the next BIG ONE!

DR. BRIDGET KONTER (University of Texas, El Paso) will present:

Locked, Loaded, and Looming? Exploring Earthquake Cycle Stress History of Seismically-active Faults of the San Andreas Fault System

Prompted by the lingering absence of a major earthquake over the past 300 years along the southern San Andreas fault, EarthScope is leading a large-scale community effort to understand the nature of earthquake hazards along the Pacific-North American plate boundary. Several key questions motivate this work: How does plate boundary stress evolve spatially and temporally throughout the earthquake cycle? What can past and present-day stress accumulation scenarios tell us about the current state of seismic hazard? GPS data from EarthScope’s Plate Boundary Observatory (PBO) provide a large-scale perspective of present-day crustal motions. This talk presents an overview of geodetic and paleoseismic observations of the San Andreas fault system. It relates how the resulting data are synthesized into earthquake stress evolution models to probe the depths, stress accumulation rates, and stress relationships of past earthquakes along seismically-active faults in California.
