Corporeal Impulse

Works in ceramics

Jan. 21 – Apr. 12, 2014

_Corporeal Impulse_ is a group exhibition featuring five West Coast artists who work primarily in clay, including Julia Haft-Candell, Matt Merkel Hess, Jeffry Mitchell, Kathleen Ryan, and Ravi Zipperstein.

The exhibition focuses on the relation between the physical body and clay. Expanding ceramics beyond its craft associations, the exhibition investigates not only the formal function of clay as vessel, but its sculptural properties as well. The artists reference the body in clay through various contexts including biological systems, temporality, indiunicity, gender, and identity. _Corporeal Impulse_ is guest curated by Allison Vinciker.

Macha Suzuki

_This is the End_

Feb. 8 – Apr. 25, 2014

Macha Suzuki’s solo show, _This is the End_, includes more than fifteen mixed-media sculptures and videos. Suzuki’s work comments on the complexities of the human condition such as failure, change and desire. Ranging from the lighthearted and playful to the threatening and pessimistic, Suzuki’s meticulously crafted sculptures convey some of the artist’s personal experiences and fantasies.

Suzuki was born in Japan and currently lives and works in Los Angeles. In 2006, she received an MFA in sculpture from Claremont Graduate University, and a BA in studio art from Azusa Pacific University in 2002. The exhibition, _This is the End_, was organized for the Laguna Art Museum by Grace Kook-Anderson, LAM’s Curator of Contemporary Art.
