June 24 – July 17, 2014

Why leave campus to work out? Join us for the Faculty and Staff Cardio Latin Dance Fitness and Sculpt class.

Let’s shake it up! Similar to ZUMBA®, this is a dance fitness program incorporating hip-hop, samba, salsa, merengue, mambo and fun! Muscle conditioning with weights and endurance exercises are also included, utilizing exercise bands, mats, weights, and balls for a total body workout.

Be sure to wear comfortable workout apparel and shoes. Please bring a towel and plenty of water. Showers are available in our locker rooms, however, lockers are unavailable for use during the summer.

All levels are welcome - new to experienced, male and female. Use this time to work off your stress and have fun!

Space is limited. To sign up, contact:
Andrea Owens - Kinesiology Dept.

Ricardo Valverde: Experimental Sights, 1971-1996
May 17 to July 26, 2014
Large Gallery, Vincent Price Art Museum

The late Los Angeles–based photographer and artist Ricardo Valverde (1946–1998) is featured in a career retrospective at VPAM that highlights more than 100 artworks spanning a twenty-five-year period of production.

Ricardo Valverde: Experimental Sights, 1971–1996 includes artworks in a wide range of media: from black-and-white and color photographs, to solarized and intervened gelatin silver prints, to painterly collages that incorporate photographs and are mounted on canvas. The exhibition includes several videos, slide projections from Valverde’s photographs of lowriders, and Day of the Dead celebrations.

VPAM’s exhibition is the first survey of Valverde’s extensive body of work, and is undertaken in partnership with the UCLA Chicano Studies Research Center, which recently published Ricardo Valverde, a new monograph in its award-winning A Ver: Revisioning Art History series. Ricardo Valverde is written by Ramón García.
