This is the second issue of the East Los Angeles College ESL Magazine. The focus is on the Noncredit program in this Winter semester issue.

Special thanks to Kathy Koupai, Michael Perrone, and Jennifer Tang who provided the content in this issue. We are excited to introduce these fresh new voices who represent a sampling of our Noncredit students and staff at ELAC.

Please also take a look at the October issue* of the ESL Magazine and vote for the best essay written by an ESL tutor in the Modern Languages Lab.

We are interested in hearing from you! Please consider submitting an article, a poem, a book review, or a photo that tells us about what you are learning at ELAC.

Sincerely,

The editorial staff of the ESL Magazine

ESL NONCREDIT CAMPUS TOURS AND EVENTS

The English as a Second Language (ESL) Noncredit program has grown on and off-campus to offer opportunities for students to learn English. There are over 50 sites offering ESL Noncredit classes in the local school districts and the surrounding communities of East Los Angeles College. In collaboration with the Student Services division, ESL NC students attend campus tours, new student orientations, and information sessions to learn more about ELAC and its resources and programs.

Students celebrate the conclusion of their ESL NC classes.

Noncredit Alumni Spotlight:

Wendy Gonzalez

Wendy Gonzalez is from El Salvador and came to the U.S. when she was 18 years old. She transferred to UCLA and studied Psychology.

Why did you take noncredit classes? How long did you take noncredit classes?
I stayed in the program for about two years, and I took NC classes because when I arrived to the U.S., I did not have enough proficiency in the English language to continue with my education.

How has the noncredit program helped you?
It helped me tremendously because it gave me strong bases in the language that helped me to succeed in credit classes, and then later with transferring to UCLA.

What did you like or not like about noncredit?
I like that the classes are free, and you have the possibility to retake the classes until you feel confident enough to move to the next level without affecting your GPA.

What advice would you give noncredit ESL students?
I would advise them to take full advantage of all the resources that ELAC provides and to use their time wisely. I would also tell them to dream big, and if they really want to continue with their higher education, they can! And just because English isn’t their first language, it doesn’t mean they’ll be stuck. They can use that as a motivation instead of an obstacle. It might be harder, but in the end, it will be all worth it.
Noncredit Alumni Spotlight: Laideng Li

Laideng Li earned an associate’s degree from ELAC and transferred to California State University, Los Angeles (CSULA) in Fall 2017. He is studying Business Management with minors in Finance & Real Estate.

Why did you take noncredit classes? When I came to the United States, I could barely understand English. Fortunately, my aunt helped me sign up a program called “Noncredit ESL” from East Los Angeles College. I started my first noncredit ESL class in 2011. I spent a whole year in the program.

How has the noncredit program helped you? The program was just the start of my education life; however, without this program I would not have become who I am today. There is an old saying: success begins with good start.

What did you like or not like about noncredit? One thing that really inspired me was the professors. Besides providing knowledge to students, noncredit ESL professors encourage students to achieve higher education to better themselves. In addition, these teachers make sure noncredit ESL students are informed with updated information, which is important. As a result, students can take advantage of the resources ELAC provides to better achieve their educational goals.

What advice would you give noncredit ESL students? Success is just about time and effort. If I put in efforts, let the time deal with the rest. More than half of a decade since I attended my first noncredit ESL class in 2011, I am still on my way, chasing my education.
Why Is Taking ESL Class Important?

Author: Li Hua Zhong
Professor: Michael Perrone
Class: ESL 42

Taking ESL classes is important for me. First, I was born in China. Chinese is my native language. Before coming to ELAC, I only spoke Chinese, because at that time I didn’t have the chance to learn English. Second, I immigrated to the United States in 2001. People in the U.S. speak English. I didn’t understand English, and it gave me a lot of inconveniences, such as going to see a doctor, going to government offices, going shopping, and so on. Third, English is popular in many countries. When I travel, I need to understand what the tour guide says and how to be introduced to the local conditions and customs of countries. Next, when I get into trouble, I can call the police to do me a favor. Finally, learning English is good for my life.

In short, learning English is very important for me. I like to learn English very much. I enjoy ESL classes. Thank you so much my favorite teacher.

One year ago, people of all backgrounds--women and men and gender non-conforming people, young and old, of diverse faiths, differently abled, immigrants and indigenous--came together, 5 million strong, on all seven continents of the world. We were answering a call to show up and be counted as those who believe in a world that is equitable, tolerant, just and safe for all, one in which the human rights and dignity of each person is protected and our planet is safe from destruction. Grounded in the nonviolent ideology of the Civil Rights movement, the Women’s March was the largest coordinated protest in U.S. history and one of the largest in world history.

On Saturday, January 20, 2018, Women’s March again took place in downtown Los Angeles and many other cities in the nation.
