Over the span of 50 years, Dolores Huerta, an iconic labor and civil rights activist, has dedicated her life’s work to advocating for workers, immigrants, and marginalized communities in America. Join us as we engage in conversation with her about the transformative power of advocacy work in furthering equity-minded practices and bringing attention to social justice issues that have a direct impact on women’s rights, students, and communities of color.